

It depends only on how much powerful the central system is. It is only a matter of performance. We are working on metering performance, so that one is able to dimension his or her system properly.

{backbutton}